DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Applicant's election without traverse of group I, claims 1-20 and 23-24 in the reply filed on 8/28/2006 is acknowledged. Applicant admitted, in paper filed 4/27/2006, that "each of the identified embodiments are directed to non-patentable distinct species, which species are believed to be obvious variants."

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim 1-3, 6, 8-9 and 16-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Groves et al. [US 2002/0158711 A1].

Groves et al. discloses an integrated circuit comprising:

- a primary spiral conductor for an inductor [32];
- a secondary spiral conductor [34] forming a loop in proximity to the primary conductor;
- a switch [36] coupled in series with the secondary conductor and operable to open or close the loop, wherein inductance of the inductor is varied by closing and opening the loop with the switch; and
- a variable capacitor [30] connected in series with the primary conductor, wherein the variable capacitor [30] and the inductor [32] forming the resonator tank.

Regarding claim 3, Groves et al. inherently discloses a current source coupled to the secondary conductor.

Regarding claim 6, Grooves et al. discloses the secondary conductor located outside the primary conductor [figure 3C].

Regarding claim 8, Grooves et al. discloses the secondary conductor located on a layer on top of the primary conductor [figure 3B].

Regarding claim 9, Grooves et al. discloses the secondary conductor located on a layer underneath of the primary conductor [figure 3A].

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 4-5, 7-15, 18-20 and 23-24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Groves et al.

Regarding claims 4-5, the specific operation of the current source would have been an obvious design consideration to control the output of the inductor as noted by applicant as being a mere obvious variants.

Regarding claims 7 and 10, the specific arrangement of the conductors and additional conductors/switches would have been an obvious design consideration based on the intended inductance, as noted by applicant as being mere obvious variants.

Regarding claims 11-12, the specific arrangement of the capacitor and additional circuit would have been an obvious design consideration based on the intended applications/environments use, as noted by applicant as being obvious variants.

Regarding claims 13-14, the specific material use for the conductor would have been an obvious design consideration for the purpose of improving conductivity.

Regarding claim 15, Groves et al. discloses a FET switch. It would have been an obvious design consideration to use MOS transistor for the switch since as noted by applicant as being mere obvious variants.

Regarding claims 18-20 and 23-24, the specific application use of the integrated circuit would have been an obvious design consideration, as noted by applicant as being mere obvious variants.
